Art Unit: 3693

Said processing engine being further operable to identify a second set of assets eligible for combination with said first set of assets to produce particular like kind exchange combinations (see column 6, lines 60 to column 7, lines 10); and as in claims 1, 2, 3

A set of parameters specifying criteria for use by said processing engine to produce particular like kind exchange combinations (see column 5, lines 55-64; and column 6, line 60 to column 7, lines 10), as in claims 1, 2, 3

--a reporting engine coupled to said processing engine and operable to produce reports to said system (see "displaying orders," column 6, lines 62-65; and column 7, lines 35-61), as in claim 2

--a communication mechanism coupled with said system and effective to permit notification to an entity capable of conducting a like kind exchange about said eligible combination (see column 6, lines 62-65; and column 4, line 46 to column 5, line 25), as in claim 3

said communication mechanism being further effective to permit information feedback to said system related to at least one like kind exchange executed by said entity (see column 4, line 46 to column 5, line 25), as in claim 3

--wherein said entity is a qualified intermediary (see column 7, lines 16-21; and column 7, lines 65 to column 8, line 8; and column 8, lines 48-57), as in claim 5

--wherein a combination of said acquired assets and said relinquished assets produce said like kind exchange combination pursuant to a regulatory code (see column 4, lines 28-31), as in claim 8

--wherein said communication mechanism is operable to provide instruction details related said like kind exchange to a financing institution (see claim 7), as in claim 9

--wherein said instruction details inform said financing institution on funding for acquired assets and usage for escrow for proceeds from the disposition of relinquished assets (see column 20, lines 52-55), as in claim 10

--wherein said communication mechanism is an electronic communication medium, whereby said instruction details can be provided automatically through said electronic communication medium (see column 1) as in claim 11
further comprising an accounting module operable to track accounting information and reconcile account information (see column 19, line 41 to column 20, line 4), as in claim 12

--wherein said accounting module is coupled to said reporting engine and said reporting engine is operable accounting reports(see column 6, lines 62-65; and column 7, lines 35-61), as in claim 13

--wherein said reporting engine is further operable to provide information usable for completing at least one regulatory filings and forms (see column 20 lines 55-64), as in claim 14

Re Claims 16, 31-33, 35-37: A method for conducting a like kind exchange, comprising:

--transmitting said transaction detail file to trustee bank, as in claim 20

--further comprising communicating with said entity over an electronic medium, whereby said files are transmitted electronically (see claim 1), as in claim 21

--wherein said matched assets include relinquished leased assets and newly acquired assets, (see claim 7), as in claim 22

Art Unit: 3693

--locating specific assets within said database based on parameter settings (see column 6, line 53 to column 7, line 15);

--Combining said assets to form like kind exchange combinations comprised of relinquished assets and newly acquired assets; and performing said like kind exchange based on value of said parameter settings (see column 6, line 53 to column 7, line 15; and column 18, line 24 to column 19, line 40), as in claim 23

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 4, 15, 24 and 26 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Himmelstein (US 7,080,050)

Re claim 4: Himmelstein shows an electronic barter system that barter items/assets and or securities (see column, lines 14-36), but fails to disclose that the assets are automotive vehicles. It would have been an obvious extension of the invention of Himmelstein to provide automobiles as an items because an artisan would have recognized the fact that the automobiles are art also commodities that may be used by the invention to be bartered. Thus such a modification would be an obvious expedient to one of ordinary skill in the art.

Re claims 15, 24 and 26: Himmelstein fails to disclose wherein said set of parameters include at least one of a time setting, a comparison tolerance setting, an override setting and an asset setting. However, since the parameters in Himmelstein do have to various aforementioned criteria (see column 6, lines 53 to column 7, line 15). Thus it would have been obvious for an artisan to recognize that the criteria mentioned would sought to use the aforementioned settings to barter items. Thus items would have been an obvious expedient well within the ordinary skill of the art.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
